

National iPhone Centre Opens in Dublin

When you think about it we rely heavily on the gadgets and gizmos we own. If any of these breakdown there can be a serious problem in this age of technology, weather its checking our Facebook, sending an important email on the go, or simply making a phone call, its of utmost importance to most people they are back up and running as soon as humanly possible. With the opening of the new National iPhone Centre people need not worry.

"We decided to bring our repair services to the masses because we found that even with Apple providing a warranty, customers often found the process of shipping their broken iPhone to the manufacturer was very time consuming and more often was not covered by the terms. We like to believe we know our iPhones, so we offer completely free repair quotes a No Fix / No Fee policy" Said Alan Donohoe, Managing Director of the National iPhone Centre. We have a big show room in the front of our store ith a vast array of electronic parts, accessories, rare iPhone gadgets and great gift ideas, come visit our store today!" adds Alan. "As soon as the iPhone hit shelves in 2007 we immediately began training our technicians in iPhone repair procedures, which make us the first company in Ireland to carry out on-site repairs of the iPhone. We knew that people ideally needed a central location to drop their iphone off for repair, so we decided to open a dedicated repair centre on Upper Abbey street, in the heart of Dublin city. Said Denise, General Manager.

"Our customers love our service, because we try to give them what they ask for, i think this has helped us stand shoulder to shoulder with the multinationals" said Patrick, Sales Person.

The National iPhone Centre Ireland is located at 6 & 7 Upper Abbey St, Dublin 1, directly across from the Garda Ombudsman. For more information people can call 01 8728722, Email: support@iphonecentre.ie or visit website: www.iPhoneCentre.ie
